BRAND

AN IDEA BORN FROM THE MOST BASIC HUMAN NEED—THIRST

It's 1989.

Bicycle enthusiast Michael Eidson, is competing in the "Hotter'N Hell 100." And that's exactly what it is: a 100-mile road race in the grueling summer heat of Wichita Falls, Texas. Water is vital to surviving the race, and there are few places to refill a water bottle. Eidson, an emergency medical technician by trade, decides to fill an IV bag with water and slip it into a white tube sock. Yes, a tube sock. Then he stuffs the contraption into the back of his bike jersey, throws the thin hose over his shoulder and clamps it with a clothespin.

Hands-free hydration is born. And Eidson is able to drink as he pedals...while the other racers laugh and fiddle with their water bottles.

It took courage, conviction and imagination to evolve from an IV bag in a tube sock sold by a motorcycle-driven sales force of one. Our core values remain the same and drive everything we do - from inventing the hydration category to becoming the world's leading maker of hydration solutions.

NEW

Today is the day. You will accomplish more, push harder and think faster. CamelBak has reinvented how you hydrate in the outdoors so you can shatter previous limitations. Feel alive as we keep you alive with packs so comfortable that they become one with you. From integrated impact protection to sleek new designs, we deliver the tools you need to fuel your passion.

BACK PANEL
